MANCHESTER NEW FIRE BRIGADE STATION

The Manchester Guardian (1901-1959); Mar 10, 1906;

ProQuest Historical Newspapers: The Guardian and The Observer

STATION. BRIGADE FIRE MANCHESTER

which are to be the home of the Manchester Bradford, and the sub-station at Moss Side, following figures:-Fire Brigade and certain other municipal in which was taken over from the late Urban stitutions, will soon be ready for occupation. District Council, are more efficient than the The builders hope to have their work com-station in Jackson's Row. pleted by the end of July. So far as the Fire • Having decided that larger premises than Brigade is concerned the change is one which those in Jackson's Row were needed, the Fire is much needed. The old premises in Jack- Brigade Committee arranged with the Improveson's Row have been out of date for a long ment Committee of the Corporation for the purtime. Fifteen years ago, when Mr. Tozer was chase of the site abutting on London Road superintenuent, their inadequacy was come between without street and random street. occupy a considerable portion of the ground and men are off at topmost speed to the scene testing department is at the corner of London mented upon, and the time that has elapsed This land was in the possession of the Corporation of the ground. The gas-meter are off at topmost speed to the scene testing department is at the corner of London Road. since then has of course not improved matters. tion. It had been acquired compulsorily for since then has of course not improved matters. from. It had been acquired compulsorily for from the police department, the gas-meter test. The Committee are not insensible to the pro- than 900 square yards of the ground area, with At present the firemen are cramped for room, street purposes, and in the committee s opinion than substitution and the coroner's court. The gress of the motor industry nor to the fact that basement and two floors above. The police who summoned to a fire in the day-time the the site was sufficiently central and large ing department, and the coroner's court. ougs are that there will be some delay at start- enough to meet the requirements for a long notive power. They will make a tentative Minshull-street, and has offices, seven cells, ing out with the engines. Often one side of time. The Committee, however, did not want the narrow roadway off Albert Square is all the space that was available, so it was occupied with lurries loading or unloading, arranged that the new oundings should comaccommodation which has difficulty in removing the stable fittings. For floors over the bank, coroner's court, and gasand if a cart or lurry happens to be entering prise a police station (with accommodation for steed will find accommodation which has difficulty in removing the stable fittings. For floors over the bank, coroner's court, and gasthe street at the top end as the fire brigade two horse ambulances), a gas-meter testingis leaving the station gates there is a block for house, a coroner's court, and a building which is leaving the station gates there is a block for house, a coloner's court, and a building which a few of those moments which it is so im- would serve to be let off as a bank. These and must have lofty and wide rooms wherein a few of those moments which it is so im- would serve to be let off as a bank. These a tew of those moments which it is so im- would serve to be let on as a bank. These and the police station and the already indicated, above the engine-house. children's playground. Besides the chief, portant to save at the beginning of a fire, additions have, of course, added to the cost of to do its work. Again, the yard itself is too small. It does the undertaking, but they should not be Again, the yard used is too small. It does the didertaking, but they should not allow for the proper training and drill of debited to the Fire Brigade's account. They It therefore seems to come to this—that while the office and living apartments of the chief dwellings for the firemen. the men. At the new station ample provision are all useful and necessary institutions, and has been made for this essential training and no one questions the wisdom of having them for the practice of all that pertains to a fire- located in this particular place; but the Fire man's duty. There are in the city eight fire Brigade Committee (of which Conneillor Fildes man's duty. There are in the city eight the prigate committee (or which continues, who and secure and secure are messes. Woodnotes, who are the brigade sub-stations, and it is the custom for is chairman) think it is a little unfortunate the building on the Fairfield-street side. There the men at these stations to go up to the chief building was meant for Fire Brigade purposes horses in the engine-house. There are seven the duty-room, there is, on the Whitworth-street the foundations at £7,720, and of the supertion. It so happens that at present the chief only. How much of the area will be occupied bays for the seven engines. Each engine, side, a recreation-room. The basement affords structure £75,000.

Road, Fairfield-street, and Whitworth-street, of equipment. The sub-station at Mill-street, devoted to other purposes will be seen by the gateway being provided for each. The men's paratus and a salvage store. On the Whit-

Squar	e yards
Fire Department	1,438 133
Coroner's Court	283
Gas-meter Testing Department	617
Courtyard in centre of buildings for drill purposes, &c.	2,050 mass!

floor on the front facing London Road; also of the fire. testing department also fulfils a useful purpose, motors and twelve horses. cipal work have been considered.

prigade sub-stations, and it is the custom for the chief that so many people have assumed the whole is accommodation for seven engines and twelve a fire. Besides the room for the men, called land is set down at £25,000, the contract for quarters are above the engine-house, so that worth-street side are the mechanics shop, when the alarm is sounded in the night season | smithy, paint shop, and a spare stable. Exthis is what will happen:—An electric bell rings perience has shown the wisdom of having men in the bedroom, which at the same time will of all trades in the fire brigade. Their knowbe flooded with light. The man thus roused ledge is often useful in getting at fires, and in goes to the corner of his bedroom and slides the hours when fires cease from troubling the down a pillar to the engine-house. The horses, men can fill up their time. The bank will be which stand ready harnessed, take their places at the corner of Fairfield-street and London The Committee will of course receive a rental in front of the engines, and immediately the Road. The entrance to the coroner's court time. Fitteen years ago, when Mr. 102er was chase of the site abutting on London Road. The gas-meter superintendent, their inadequacy was com- between Whitworth-street and Fairfield-street. from Williams Deacon's Bank, Limited, which doors are flung open and the horses, engines, will be from London Road. The gas-meter > need for a coroner's court has often been before long horses must give place to the new station is at the angle of Whitworth-street and and jurymen, witnesses, and others whom use of motors, and when the time comes for stabling for four horses, an ambulance-house, necessity and not their own will compels to adopting them altogether they will have no and six dwellings for police officers. The upper hitherto been denied them. The gas-meter the present they are keeping places for two meter testing offices are to be used as dwellings > horse ambulances the city cannot dispense with. Over it also are the electrical operator's room, second, and third officers' houses, there are 36

The great pile of buildings facing London station is below two of the sub-stations in point by the fire department and how much is when not in use, will stand facing the street, a the needful accommodation for the heating apfor the firemen, accourrement stores, gym-

The buildings have a substantial and gade, the needs of other departments of muni- hose tower is a prominent feature of the build- dignified appearance. Brick has been used ing, and is an essential part of a well-equipped throughout, with terra-cotta facings. The The Fire Brigade will occupy the whole of fire station. It is used for the quick and architects are Messrs. Woodhouse, Willoughby, Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.